Iraq Scores U.S. Support Of Zionism

The Government of Iraq released in Baghdad the text of a note it had sent to the United States asserting that "any support given Zionism is deemed an act directed against Iraq in particular and the Arab peoples in general."

"Textually the note said:

"If it is true that President Truman sent a letter to Prime Minister Clement Attlee demanding the entry of 100,000 Jews into Palestine, then it is contrary to all oral and written promises and undertakings to the effect that the United States would not move in the matter before consulting the Arabs.

"Arabs in general and Iraqis in particular do not believe Zionism is the means of solving the world-wide Jewish problem. The Palestine Arabs have the right to determine their fate without intervention by other nations.

"Iraq protests strongly against any attempt to admit strangers to Palestine without the consent of the Arabs who are the legitimate owners of Palestine. The Iraq Government regards it as its duty to inform the United States Government that it deems any support given Zionism to be an act directed against Iraq in particular and against the Arab peoples in general."

Colonel Oliver Stanley, British Colonial Secretary for three years under Prime Minister Churchill, suggested in London that Palestine be placed under jurisdiction of the Foreign Office because it occupied between 75 and 90 per cent of the Colonial Secretary's time with the result that the rest of the colonial administration suffered.

Asserting that the next few [illegible] Colonial Secretary, the former Minister suggested revision of colonial administrations and extension of the consultative and cooperative commissions formed with the United States in the Caribbean. He warned that nothing could be worse for colonial administration than that power politics should enter into the suggested revisions.

The Hebrew Committee of National Liberation, in a communication to the British Government, transmitted by its chairman, Peter H. Bergson, in Washington, D.C., through the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador, called for "immediate action" to halt "impending outbursts of violence" in Palestine and for no longer delay in the transfer of "the Hebrew people from Europe to Palestine as requested by President Truman in

U.S. Army Aides Deny Jewish Camps Are Bad

Official U.S. Army circles said at Frankfort-am-Main, Germany, that White House charges of appalling conditions among the Jews in the displaced persons camps in United States-occupied Germany apparently had been based on "old information" concerning conditions that existed before Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower ordered Gen. George S. Patton Jr. to "clean up" Bavaria recently. General Eisenhower after a personal tour of all displaced persons camps in the American zone, ordered General Patton to improve drastically the conditions in the Bavarian camps.

High headquarters officers expressed amazement at the report released by President Truman that conditions still were bad in the camps in the American zone. The officers pointed out that less than a week ago General Eisenhower made public an order to his commanders to give top priority to housing displaced persons this winter even if German civilians had to be evicted from their homes.

General Eisenhower's headquarters officers said that they felt that they had "nothing to apologize for" in connection with the present treatment of Jewish displaced persons camps in the American zone.

"It is not up to us to dispute what the President says," one high authority said, "but it seems that our Jewish camps are in splendid shape now as compared with a few months ago."

He said that the 25,000 Jews in the American zone were receiving a diet of 2,500 calories at the minimum, almost twice that of the German civilian. He said that the camps had been cleaned up and were relatively uncrowded, with [illegible] allotted greater space than [illegible] requirements for United States troops.

Officers at American headquarters in the vast I. G. Farbenindustrie buildings were obviously amazed when informed of the President's charge that the Americans were treating the Jews as the Germans did under the Nazi regime.

Headquarters said they had not been advised officially of the President's statement.

Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelson, chief of Combined Displaced Persons, executive, reported that after an extensive tour a few days ago that the camps were in remarkably good condition.

His survey showed that there were 600,000 German Jews in Germany before the war but that only 25,000 were now in the American zone. Thousands were killed or fled the country.

Says Zionists Can't Speak For All Jews

Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the American Council for Judaism, declared in a statement that attempts were being made by holding mass meetings and other propaganda devices, to foster the erroneous impression that all Jews were united in support of the Zionist plan to establish Jews as a nation and to make Palestine a Jewish commonwealth.

"This is simply not true," he said. "No one possesses the authority or the right to speak in the name of all Americans of Jewish faith.

"In behalf of the American Council for Judaism, an organization of Americans of Jewish faith who oppose Jewish nationalism, refuse to participate in a political organization of Jews, and oppose the creation of a Jewish state, we call attention to the divergence of opinion among Jews on this subject. We draw public attention to our program which seeks to maintain the only identity of Jews as individual adherents of a Jewish religion. We seek one thing only for Jews; a status of equality of rights and obligations throughout the world."

As to Palestine and its status, Mr. Rosenwald said the Council urged aid for immigration into that country from political objectives and consistent with Palestine's sound economic development and political well-being without discrimination or privileges for any group.

"We favor the earliest possible acquisition of self-government in Palestine in which all Moslems, Christians and Jews, fulfilling the requirements of citizenship shall participate equally.

"We deem it particularly important to draw attention to the fact that an overwhelming body of American Jews hold this view by virtue of their principles as Americans of Jewish faith. We reject all those self-appointed spokesmen who presume to make their partisan claims in the name of all Americans of the Jewish faith."

Doctor Tells Of Camp Atrocities

Dr. Fritz Leo, who practiced medicine in Dresden before he became a victim of the Nazis, told in detail how inmates of Belsen concentration camp resorted to cannibalism to avoid starvation.

Speaking with damning calm at the trial of forty-five German men and women accused of atrocities at the Belsen and Oswiecim camps, he said he had seen 200 to 300 cases of cannibalism at Belsen, where he was a doctor-internee.

"I recall one body with a cut near the liver, and the liver taken out in five similar cases," he said, adding that he had seen other bodies with the muscles of arms and back hacked out.

Dr. Leo was the first German witness called before the British military court. He testified as if he had been waiting for this day for a decade. He told how human beings fought like animals for food, how they carried human flesh around in their pockets, and how the SS (Nazi Elite Guard) ordered those who practiced cannibalism hanged or beaten to death.

Dr. Leo testified that an Englishman named Keith Meyer was summarily shot after only a superficial examination in the prison hospital.

He said conditions at Belsen were "far worse" than at the Buchenwald camp and that Belsen was known officially as the "sick camp."

Dr. Leo, who was interned ten years ago and forced to help the Nazis in their camp, was brought to Luneburg from the Russian zone of occupation to testify.

He described Belsen as "one vast latrine" when he arrived at the camp at the end of February and was appointed by the Germans as doctor at the No. 2 compound where 6,000 men were being treated in "indescribable" hospital conditions.

The place where he was supposed to work, he said, was three feet deep in rubbish, the roof leaked and there was no sanitation. There were only meager quantities of medical supplies and his operating table was a small wooden bench.

"Anyone with appendicitis or anything similar simply died, al-

Christian Front Rally Is First Since 1941

Three of six speakers who addressed the first Christian Front rally in Queens County since 1941, were held in high bail in New York for trial in Special Sessions on charges of attempting to disturb the public peace.

Arrested on the complaint of Isidore Ginsberg, New York State commander of the Jewish War Veterans, the men were identified as Ernest Frederick Elmhurst, once known as Hermann Fleischkopf, who is awaiting trial in Washington with twenty-nine others on charges of sedition; Kurt Mertig, onetime secretary of the disbanded League of German National Societies; and Homer Herman Maertz, of Chicago, a former member of the Silver Shirts, who said he was head of the Pioneer News Service and editor of "The Dispatch," a monthly.

The meeting, advertised in circulars as an attempt to revive the Christian Front movement in New York, opened at 8.30 p.m., Saturday in Veterans' Plaza, at Jamaica Avenue and Springfield Boulevard, Queens Village. About 300 men and women, including a number of men in Army uniforms, were present. Captain Samuel Mooney and ten patrolmen of the Queens Village precinct also attended to maintain order.

Mr. Ginsberg, accompanied by a secretary and Colonel William Berman, national executive secretary of the veteran's organization, came to the meeting "to listen," he said. He listened quietly, he added, until Maertz made vicious accusations against the Jewish race and then endeavored to sell books and pamphlets.

The meeting was opened by C. Daniel Kurtz, of 115-25 203rd Street, St. Albans, who identified himself as the Christian Front "leader of Queens" and said he "had suffered for the cause." He said he was arrested in September, 1941, and sent to Kings County Hospital for observation. His remark was true, for he was arrested then on the complaint of Mr. Ginsberg.

Kurtz placed a small white cross above the American flag on the speakers' platform and announced: "We place this Christian cross on top of the flag and move forward."

Other speakers included Mrs. Catherine Brown, of Philadelphia, founder and head of the National Blue Star Mothers of America, and Fred Kister, who described himself as a veteran and national chairman of the Christian Veterans of Chicago. Kister said he had sent a message to General George S. Patton jr., urging him to take his (Kister's) place as national chairman of the group.

Mr. Ginsberg said later that the meeting was orderly until 9.30 p.m., when Maertz took the speakers' stand and launched a vicious attack on the Jews. He held up a copy of a book labeled "Jewish Ritual Murder" and declared he

N.Y. Gangsters Molest Small Shops

The most serious anti-Semitic outburst in New York City since the summer of 1939 when the Christian Front was at its peak, took place on the East Side in the early hours of a Saturday morning when a gang of thugs broke the windows of 14 Jewish-owned shops.

Striking between 3.30 and 4 a.m., the anti-Semites, whom police say drove in an automobile, threw bricks and garbage cans into the store windows at Madison and Jefferson Streets in the heart of the Jewish community.

Among the stores damaged by the hoodlums were a jewelry shop, a butcher shop, a Jewish bookstore, a drug store, a candy store and a barber shop. All the stores are small and poor establishments.

Councilmen Peter V. Cacchione of Brooklyn, Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., of Manhattan and Michael Quill of the Bronx introduced a joint resolution in the City Council calling for an investigation of the recent anti-Semitic outbreaks in Brooklyn and the Bronx.

The resolution calls upon the City Council to "set up a committee to investigate the circumstances of anti-Semitic outbreaks in the city of New York and the actions of members of the Police Department in connection therewith."

N.Y. Judge, Once Russian Immigrant, To Help Army With Jewish Problems In Germany

Judge Simon H. Rifkind, of the United States District Court in New York City, will join General Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff soon as a special consultant on Jewish problems in Germany.

Judge Rifkind is taking the post by invitation of the War Department to assist in unravelling the complicated problems surrounding the remnants of the Jewish population which survived the Nazi terror. He will serve on the military government staff in the United States zone of Germany for a period estimated as several months. During that time he will be on leave from the Federal bench.

The development, it is believed, is a direct result of President Truman's directive to General Eisenhower a week ago to clean up shocking conditions in the treatment of displaced Jews outside the Russian zone and in Austria.

The selection of Judge Rifkind is believed to have additional significance in that he is a native of Russia who came to the United States as a boy, became a well-known corporation lawyer and rose to a position of prestige in the judiciary.

Such a background, it is believed by observers in the capital, will facilitate negotiations with Soviet Russia concerning the fate of many thousands of Jews who are classified as "stateless persons." These "stateless" Jews are foreigners in Germany—people taken from their homelands into the Reich for forced labor.

In his first report on the state of Germany under occupation made to the joint Chiefs of Staffs a week ago, General Eisenhower stated that thus far 20,000 persons had been classified as stateless in the American zone alone.

"This group," said General Eisenhower, "consists largely of Jews who formerly resided in Poland and expatriates from other European states."

General Eisenhower also said that there were still in the American zone 70,000 displaced persons not classified yet as to nationality.

One particularly aggravating problem facing the American military authorities in Europe, and one with which Judge Rifkind will undoubtedly have to cope before the winter sets in, is the fate of the Jews native to Germany [illegible] years of persecution and privation, are now destitute and many have no desire to remain in their homeland, even with the Nazis turned out of office.

President Truman has been under considerable pressure from various groups to use his influence to persuade the British Government to open Palestine to increased immigration of Jews from Europe. The President is sympathetic with this idea and has formally requested Prime Minister Attlee to admit 100,000 displaced Jews from Germany and Austria to Palestine.

Arabs Want To Bar Jewish Land Purchase

Abdul Rahman Azzam Bey, secretary general of the Arab League, in London, criticized President Truman's message to Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee on Jewish immigration to Palestine, stating that President Roosevelt had promised the Arab nations that American policy in Palestine would be based on Arab consultation and a determination not to employ force.

He asserted that the Palestine question represented a clash between the rights of an indigenous population and a "mixed and alien emigrant population seeking to submerge it," and described the situation as "inflammable."

He [illegible] have no animosity toward the Jews, but we are opposed to the idea of domination backed by European imperialism," and added that the Arab League wished to ban further acquisition of land by Jews and the creation of Jewish and Arab self-governing institutions on a democratic basis.

This runs flatly counter to assertions made by R. Zaslani of the Jewish Agency, who warned that tens of thousands of Jews in Europe would attempt to fight their way into Palestine unless they

500 Holy Scrolls Wanted For Europe

An urgent appeal for American and Canadian synagogues to contribute 500 holy Scrolls of the Law for use in rededicated and rebuilt synagogues in all parts of Europe was made by Rabbi Leo Jung, chairman, Cultural-Religious Committee of the Joint Distribution Committee, Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, for Simchas Torah, the Day of the Rejoicing of the Law.

Already about 200 Sifre Torah have been received by the J.D.C. from all over the United States and Canada and 55 of them were shipped to Europe in time for Rosh Hashonah. Rabbis Jung, Goldstein and Wise said that in many congregations there "repose holy Scrolls in excess of those needed for actual services. What greater 'Mitzvah' could any American or Canadian Jewish congregation perform than make an outright gift of one or more of their excess Scrolls for use overseas?" A minimum of 500 more Sifre Torah are sorely needed as soon as possible in order to replace those so ruthlessly desecrated and destroyed by the Nazis. Prior to shipment overseas all Sifre Torah are examined and repaired at the offices of the Central Relief Committee, an agency subventioned by the J.D.C. Names of donors are inscribed on all Scrolls.

A part of the Joint Distribution Committee's program of relief and rehabilitation for the impoverished 1,250,000 Jews in continental Europe is devoted to assisting in the rebuilding and re-opening of synagogues, religious schools and other communal institutions. To date in 1945, on the recommendation of its Cultural-Religous Committee, the J.D.C. program includes the support of Yeshivoth, needy rabbis, and the supplying of additional Scrolls of the Law and other religious articles.

were accorded refuge and said that, armed and desperate, they were determined to make this effort. He said they faced the alternative of suicide in hate-ridden Europe or a haven in Palestine. He then added:

"Thousands of them are determined that they will take things into their own hands. They will steal boats and buy boats and they will go across the Mediterranean.

"The 600,000 Jews in Palestine are all related to these fugitives from misery in Europe. There are arms in Palestine which, for the most part, have never been abused. But should this descent on Palestine start with bloodshed, then the Jews in Palestine will regard it as their own personal fight."

The entire Middle East is bubbling with potential trouble as the British Third Division arrived in Egypt a few weeks after Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha, the Premier, demanded the evacuation of foreign troops. More units of the Sixth British Airborne Division are proceeding to Palestine.

Other British units, including East African troops, are already in Palestine. Parties of desperate Jews without immigration permits recently embarked at Haifa and mobile Palestine police units with armored cars and tommyguns were reported to have commenced a wide search, examining the permits of all persons.

"could prove every word in it was true," Mr. Ginsberg said in court.

The book contains the statement that the kidnapped child of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg was the victim of Jewish ritual murder.

Maertz left the stand with two satchels full of literature, but before he could peddle any Mr. Ginsberg seized him and called a patrolman. Maertz was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct and so was Mr. Ginsberg. The charge against the latter was brought by Mertig.

In Queens Felony Court before Magistrate Joseph D. De Andrea, Maertz was held in $1,000 bail for hearing in Flushing Court on charges of distributing inflammatory literature. Mr. Ginsberg was remanded in his own custody for hearing the same day in the same court. Magistrate De Andrea said to Maertz: "You are a dangerous character."

Mr. Ginsberg then brought charges against Maertz, Elmhurst and Mertig. He accused them of violating Section 2,092 of the penal code, "attempting to disturb the public peace at an unlawful assembly." Maertz was held in $5,000 bail and Elmhurst and Mertig in $2,000 bail each.

Education Works On The Side Of Tolerance In Race Relations

By Suzann F. Cohen

At the recent Eighty-First Annual Convention of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, which met at Montreal High School, the Canadian Jewish Congress Public Relations Office presented an exhibit dealing with intercultural relations and methods of combatting race prejudice. The exhibit was featured along with publishers' stands suggesting books for home reading, and supplementary and required school texts. Beside it, in appropriately good company, was a niche for the Christian Science Monitor, known as one of the most honest and straightforward of all daily papers. There were displays showing visual education methods and supplies, with the newest trends in that way of teaching; and mimeographing and duplicating systems were offered for inspection.

There is a changing pattern in imparting the techniques of civilization to both teachers and pupils. The books offered by publishers at the convention have been overhauled in the last few years, and they are finally catching up on the cultural lag between ideas, which forge ahead, and their slow inclusion into the permanent culture of society. The history books, for instance, have finally come to the point where they depict the pageantry and romance of the past, and forecast through it what the future should be. The comparatively new link between home and school was emphasized by the number of books of all publishers directed to the parents in cooperation with teachers, not just for the teachers alone. This was brought forward even more directly by the placards on tooth decay and how to brush teeth regularly; and the books for parents on sex education of children.

Since the school child, even the youngest one, comes to school with acquired prejudices and habits of behaviour, the hope of eradicating prejudice from a society lies in the schools, because the school class is an organized group, easier to reach than the home of each individual child. In many cases, too, it is the teacher, rather than the parents, who is more equipped to help the child, at each age and mind level, to think rationally, to pick out and recognize what is logical, what is right, and what is wrong.

The Bureau For Intercultural Education, organized for "understanding, co-operation, and unity among the cultural groups in America"; the Council Against Intolerance In America; the Common Council For American Unity; the Public Affairs Committee; and the National Conference Of Christians And Jews, all in the United States, function actively, through pamphlets, books, and speakers, to assist teachers and parents in coordinating book-learning with living.

On display at the Canadian Jewish Congress exhibit were a few of their books and pamphlets; reprints of articles from other sources, too; some to suggest their inclusion in school programs, and some were to be taken home and thought over, as a present.

Public Affairs Pamphlet, number eighty-five, "The Races Of Mankind", by Ruth Benedict and Gene Weltfish, formed the predominant arrangement. Presented to show that the peoples of the earth are all one family, the booklet is illustrated graphically with pictures, of which two blown-up examples were placed over the exhibit. Tied in with it was the offer of a short movie-sequence, with more of these pictures, and a running commentary, in comic-strip form to drive the point home more easily to adolescents. Lined up with this are books like "Probing Our Prejudices", by Hortense Powdermaker, which is to be a topic of discussion on the Citizens' Forum radio program this winter.

There were some of the booklets put out by Warner Brothers to reiterate the message of their movie short, "It Happened In Springfield", outlining the method of the Springfield Plan, which coordinates almost all the subjects of its school curriculum with home and school, both, in the effect to direct a free, independent, thinking society.

To supplement its display, there were take-home catalogues listing the publications of the Bureau For Intercultural Education; reprints on the "Jews In Canada", from the yearbook of the Canadian Jewish Congress and of an article by Philip Wylie, in the American Mercury of January, 1945, "Memorandum On Anti-Semitism".

Mr. Wylie describes himself as a "sixth-and-seventh generation Scotch - Irish - Presbyterian - American", and writes that "America's little red school house never taught the similarities of people. It concentrated on their differences". In driving that point home, he knows that the ascendance of scapegoat mentality in a society and the rise of its pressure on minority groups is a sharp indication of social unrest and onrushing social disorganization. It happens every time. In countries like the United States and Canada, where the existence of a well-ordered society is absolutely dependent on maintaining the balance between racio-religious factions, understanding of group relationships has to be made a focal point of education.

To accomplish this, the Bureau For Intercultural Education, and the Council Against Intolerance In America, provide books, discussions projects, and visual equipment to help teachers translate the ideas of inter-group amity and civic responsibility to their pupils. The Common Council For American Unity, which began as a Jewish syndicated news service, and then branched out to work for all minority groups, publishes quarterly "Common Ground", in an effort to develop respect for them.

The Canadian Jewish Congress has arranged to place one hundred and fifty copies of "One God", by Florence Mary Fitch, a professor at Oberlin College, Ohio, showing and comparing the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish religions, in libraries of Protestant schools in Quebec, through the request of the Quebec Protestant Board of School Commissioners; in Saskatchewan, the C.C.F. government arranged to distribute the Public Affairs pamphlet "The Races Of Mankind", to teachers through that province; and at the National Convention Of Canadian Teachers, to be held shortly in Vancouver, there will be an exhibit similar to the recent one in Montreal.

The practical work of the Congress in the field of race relations has shown accomplishment. Through its work, it is helping to tear down some of the established, uninformed, sinister concepts of prejudice, and to replace them with the educated patterns of thought which have come to symbolize the unbiased contemporary community.

Complete "March Of Time" Film Of Palestine

Jean Pages, director-reporter, and Robert Navarra, cameraman, who spent six months in Palestine making a documentary for "March of Time" have completed their work. The 32,000 feet of film exposed in Palestine were shipped to their New York headquarters to be edited into a regular issue of "March of Time". The final version will consist of about 2,000 feet and will run 20 minutes. Mr. Pages worked independently but in close cooperation with local authorities.

"My work was absolutely objective," Mr. Pages told the Palestine Post, "political bias never entered the picture. Travelling through the country, we filmed what we thought of interest. It was pretty strenuous, but we hope to present a true and impartial picture.

"The human angle was our main objective, the recording of the tremendous efforts to renew this ancient soil. I am French, though in American uniform, so you won't be surprised if, in this connection I often recalled LaFontaine's fable, the one of the dying man who told his sons that he had left them a treasure buried behind the house. They dug and dug without result. But later the barren soil bore fruit for the first time.

"We started right at the beginning. We visited young pioneers 'at the edge of beyond' whose incredibly hard work has already borne fruit; we visited fertile places which, ten years ago, were malaria-infested swamps. We recorded the selfless work of Dr. Birnbaum in the Huleh taking care of sick Jews and Arabs—and I saw (and so did Navarro's camera) how Arab women embraced this quiet young chap looking at him with worshipful eyes.

"We filmed Arab and Jewish life, industries, schools, the Rutenberg Power Stations and diamond factories; we were present at the High Commissioner's reception for the Patriarch Alexei; we photographed the Jordan, and Prima Salzmann and Michael Taube. The most exciting event was the arrival of a refugee ship in Haifa . . . those scenes are burnt into my memory.

"Occasionally, typical scenes which we were keen to capture did not materialize at the psychological moment. When that happened both Arabs and Jews invariably did their best to help us out."

Services Held On Train

The traditional melodies of Rosh Hashana services emanated from a troop train as it was speeding from Fort Dix to California, carrying European veterans of the famous 305 Signal Corps battalion to Camp Cooke for reassignment. There were 75 Jewish men on that train whose non-Jewish buddies had vacated one of the coaches and helped to convert it into a temporary mobile synagogue. With Capt. Harry Nelson, Assistant Post Chaplain at Fort Dix officiating, the men held full-fledged Rosh Hashonah services and afterwards sat down to a JWB-supplied "Yom-tef" meal complete with chicken, gefilte fish, challah, wine and salami.

The men on the train had just completed 30-day furloughs after returning from Europe. They had to report back to Dix for reassignment on Rosh Hashonah eve. Chaplain Nelson tried to get them an extension so as to enable them to spend the Holy Days with their families, but it would have held up the entire shipment and therefore could not be done.

The boys were very disappointed at the thought of having to spend the New Year riding on a train until Chaplain Nelson hit on the idea of organizing the "speeding synagogue." He travelled with them to St. Louis and when he got off there left in his stead one of their men whom he had coached sufficiently to hold services on Sunday.

MARRIAGES

WEINTRAUB-COHEN

The marriage of Dolly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cohen, 2672 Soissons Avenue, to Joseph M. Weintraub, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myer Weintraub, 136 Villeneuve Street West, took place at Adath Israel Synagogue, on August 26, at five o'clock, Rabbi [illegible] assisted by Rabbi Lewis A. Weintraub, brother of the groom, and Reverend M. Mandelcorn. Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of white satin. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice, period-draped skirt, fitted in back, and ending in a fishtail train. This was topped with a white lace redingote, buttoned to the hips, with a semi-shawl forming a V-neckline, long sleeves pointed over the hands; and a three-yard train. Her three-quarter-length veil, edged with a ruffle, fell from a headdress made of white satin rosebuds and tulle, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli. Mrs. Mac Lifshitz, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, in pale blue lace over satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, full skirt, and short sleeves; and matching lace gloves. Her pale blue short veil fell from a matching tulle headdress, and she carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty-colored gladioli. The bridesmaids, Misses Hazel Berger, Ruth Segal, Eva Greenberg, and Bertha Starer, were gowned alike in mauve, pink, turquoise, and chartreuse-color, respectively. Their gowns, of lace and net, were fashioned with sweetheart necklines, fitted bodices, drop-shoulder sleeves, and full skirts, and they had lace gloves and headdresses of small colored flowers, to match their gowns, with short veils. They carried miniature cascade bouquets of gladioli, with matching satin streamer ribbons, in contrasting colors to the shades of their gowns. Carol and Ethel Pinsky, twin sisters, were flower girls. They were dressed alike in pale blue taffeta with rows of pink ruffles at shoulders and hem, fitted bodices, and full skirts. They had hairbands trimmed with pink ribbon bows, and carried blue straw purses, covered with pink gladioli and pink ribbons. Rabbi Lewis A. Weintraub, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were: Harry Cohen, brother of the bride; Manuel Shtutman, cousin of the bride; Harry Klein, and Abbey Cohen, Elliot Lifshitz, nephew of the bride, aged two and a half years, was page boy, in white tails, white ball-cap hat, white bow tie, with a red rose in his lapel, and he carried the ring on a white satin cushion. The synagogue was decorated with standards of white and pink gladioli, trimmed with ferns and white ribbons; fern-covered menorahs with lighted tapers, and fern plants. There was organ music, and a soloist sang, "Because". The tables were set in cabaret style, each centred with white and pink gladioli, and lighted tapers. Mrs. Cohen, mother of the bride, received in a light grey lace gown over silver-colored satin, fashioned with a V-neckline, draped bodice, and skirt ending in a fishtail train, and cocktail sleeves; pink elbow-length gloves, pink tulle hat, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Weintraub, mother of the groom, wore a gown of light blue crepe, fashioned with a V-neckline; long pointed sleeves, fitted bodice, and side-draped skirt ending in a fishtail train; matching hat, with blue veil, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in Atlantic City and New York, the bride travelling in a light-brown tailored suit, with a white blouse, and dark brown matching accessories. They are living at 2672 Soissons Avenue. Out-of-town guests were: I. Cohen and daughter, Shirley, uncle and cousin of the bride, of Somerville, N.J.; Mrs. H. regard to the displaced Jews in Germany and Austria."

The American Jewish Trade Union Committee for Palestine released the text of a cable sent by Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, to Prime Minister Clement Attlee protesting against reports that the British Labor Cabinet favored continuation of the Palestine White Paper "with slight modifications."

Declaring that American labor, together with British labor, had supported Jewish aspirations in Palestine, Mr. Murray said, "Speaking for the entire membership of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, I respectfully urge you to avert this cruel blow to the Jewish people and to bring about the fulfillment of the promise of unrestricted Jewish immigration to Palestine."

A statement outlining an opposing point of view to that expressed in the Senate was issued by the Arab Office, sponsored by the Governments of the Arab States. The need for continued Jewish immigration to Palestine was challenged; allegations were made that "political Zionism" was trying to make the country a "Jewish commonwealth"; and the warning was delivered that upon a solution of the problem depended the "continued peace of that strategic part of the world."

LETTER TO RABBI STERN FROM MONTREALER IN GERMANY

charge of the S.S. troops of the Belsen concentration camp after its liberation. He had the S.S. dig large graves to bury the countless numbers of human bones that lay around the camp.

I also met a Chazan who sang at the largest synagogue in Warsaw before the war. As it grew late, Rabbi Fingerman invited us to a house that was set aside for Jewish activities and here we retired for the night after spending the most thrilling day of our lives.

Now, what are my impressions of these people? Firstly, my sympathies are great for these Jews. Secondly, they look upon their years of torment and suffering as if they had dreamed it, they are in a kind of a quandary. Will they ever recover from that nightmarish experience? In order to rehabilitate themselves again, they must act as a group and not as individuals. At that meeting we attended, there was not the slightest semblance of order or discipline amongst them. I realize that their confinement caused them to live more like animals than human beings and that this new-found freedom is a little too much. In the meantime grave problems are at hand, resulting in so much delay. Their constant hope lies in the day when they shall go to Palestine, for they have so little faith in all else.

My suggestion is that Jewry in Canada, the United States and England should do every possible thing in assisting these down-trodden people. They need more than sympathy. They need action and plenty of it. When mentioned that the people in Canada, England and the United States were thinking about them, they said, "It is no good to think about us. What we need today is their assistance and mighty quick." This is quite true, for surely, enough words have been printed and uttered about their precarious condition.

I thought, Rabbi, that this little experience of mine, in personal contact with these Jewish people, and getting a glimpse of their conditions, would be of interest to you.

How grateful are YOU for VICTORY?

When John Doe heard of Canada's 9th Victory Loan, he said, "Here is my chance to prove my gratitude for victory."

John Doe is a practical man, and wise. Though wars may end, he knows there can be no true victory, no real peace, until the effects of war are repaired and men again can live in a prosperous and quiet land. He wants to see the end of uncertainty, sacrifice and suffering; he wants to go forward to better things. And he knows that Canada's 9th Victory Loan will help to ensure all these benefits.

It will provide help for our returning heroes who played so great a part in the defeat of our enemies. It will provide care for the ill and the injured; it will support the loved ones of those who will never return; it will equip the rest for useful citizenship and their parts in the building of the greater Canada that is to be.

Then, too, Canada's 9th Victory Loan will permit co-operation with our Allies in bringing essential help to liberated countries. Production for this purpose, together with production on the backlog of home requirements, will help create employment.

This will be the last Loan for a year. Therefore, Canadians can and will achieve their objective, as they have before. We will do so by purchasing more Bonds than ever before; by investing all we can from savings, and still more out of income.

With twelve months instead of six, over which to spread our payments, we will be able, too, to invest in Bonds of denominations BIGGER than before — and have the satisfaction of knowing that our money is being loaned, not given, and that we will get it back — with interest.

Are you, like John Doe, impatient for all the blessings of this postwar era? Then do your part to ensure their full realization.

Letter To Rabbi Stern From Montrealer In Germany

The following letter to Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, is from Trooper Bernard Goldfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Goldfield, of Montreal, 14th Field Regiment Royal Canadian Artillery, in Germany:

It seems as though an eternity has passed since the days when I attended the Religious School and services at the Temple. I have been prompted to write to you because I have just finished reading the Temple bulletin for Yom Kippur.

I have been in Germany for over three months now. I am presently in the Canadian Army Occupational Force. As you are able to imagine, this is indeed not by any means the best way to spend one's time. However, we have to make the best of it.

I had expectations of spending the High Holidays in England with relatives in London but apparently something happened, making it impossible for me to go there. Instead, I spent these important holidays at Hanover and Brunswick in Germany.

I attended New Year's services at Hanover in an English army camp. The services were conducted by an English Jewish Chaplain, Major Levy. Also in attendance were two other Chaplains. Several hundred English Jewish soldiers attended these services. Only a handful of Canadians were there. Services were held in other cities, too, accounting, perhaps, for the low Canadian attendance. Rosh Hashonah, or rather Erev Rosh Hashonah, several other Jewish lads, one from Glasgow, a Londoner, and about eight Canadian lads, all Jewish, drove down the main street in Hanover after the evening service, singing Yiddish songs and also "Hatikvah." I would like to know the reaction of the German people as we drove along.

While in Hanover we were invited to go to Braunschweig (Brunswick), a large city about twenty-five miles away. Mr. and Mrs. Ansell invited us eight Jewish Canadian boys to the canteen they operate there, sponsored by the Jewish Hospitality Committee. Mr. Ansell also opened the Jewish canteen in Brussels last October, which I also have visited. On arriving at their lovely canteen this Rosh Hashonah evening, we were immediately asked to dine with them in their private quarters. A few words about the canteen now.

It was formerly the Hotel Lorenz, week-end rendezvous of Hitler and Eva Braun, his mistress. On this same hotel a sign was posted at the entrance in 1930, "No Jews Allowed". The city of Brunswick was the first city in Germany to become completely Nazified. That happened in 1932. Now to get back to Rosh Hashonah. We ate that evening in what was formerly Hitler's bedroom. In this room we participated in the services and later had our meal. Mr. Ansell is having a small synagogue made from this room. When we were there, he told us some Jerries were working on an ark to house the Torah. There are two flags on the outside of the building, the Union Jack and the Star of David. A truck is used by the canteen to convey rations. On each side of the canvass of the vehicle there is a Star of David painted on. Ironically enough, a Jerry drives it. A few weeks ago, General Montgomery visited the canteen and gave his congratulations to Mr. Ansell on the fine work he has done there. This is the only canteen in Brunswick and there are about three thousand lads that pass through daily. It is located in the British occupied zone.

While we were walking along the streets of Brunswick, we met quite by accident some youngsters, about four young boys with a white and blue emblem on their lapels, the colours used in the Star of David. On asking them who they were they told us that they were Jewish. They told us that they were Polish Jews and were living in a D.P. (displaced persons) camp where about a hundred Jewish people were staying. They wanted to take us there immediately. However, we told them we would return to Brunswick the following day (Sunday, September 19).

We came back the next day from Hanover to Brunswick and met them again. They took us by street-car to their camp, about a twenty-minute journey from the center of town. A Polish soldier guarded the gate but after a little persuasion, for the place was definitely out-of-bounds to all troops, he let us pass through. We went into a building which was formerly German barracks but now it is occupied by these Jewish people. They expected us and invited us into their rooms and were indeed glad to see us as we were so glad to see them.

Later on they brought us into a large room where an old broken-down phonograph played some Polish dances. There were almost a hundred Jews in that room, all with happy shining faces. They got us to dance their native Polish dances with them, they sang both Yiddish and Polish songs to us and we in turn, (eight Canadian Jews) sang "Roll Out The Barrel" and several army songs, and also the French-Canadian song, "Allouette." These people were happy. This was the first Rosh Hashonah they were able to celebrate for five or six years.

Many of these Jews spent all this length of time in horror camps like Belsen and Auschwicz, under pressure of indescribable cruelty. They were brought from Poland and some were forced to work in munitions factories while others were sent to concentration camps. I shall not dwell on their tortures and methods inflicted by the fanatic S.S. because enough publicity in the press and motion pictures has been given to all these crimes.

However, let it suffice when I say, that from what I heard from these Polish Jews, stories written about these atrocities were quite mild in many cases. Amongst all these men and women, boys and girls in that room, there was not a complete family unit.

Later that evening we went to a meeting of all the representative committees of all Jewish D.P.s of Polish, Hungarian, Roumanian and other nationalities. A member of the Military Government presided and on the speakers' stand were several distinguished Jews of different nationalities. These meetings occur frequently so that reports by these various representatives may be made known on the conditions existing in the D.P. camps. Apparently at the meeting that we attended, it seemed as though accommodations for the oncoming winter were very serious.

After the meeting was over, a Rabbi Fingerman from Warsaw, appointed Chaplain by the Military Government for these Jewish people, invited us to a little gathering nearby in a cafe where we ate a meal consisting of powdered eggs, potatoes, dark black bread, wine and beer. I met a Polish Jewish man in this cafe who served us. I learned later he was put in

"Sometimes when people censure me.
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

The report of former United States Immigration Commissioner Earl G. Harrison to President Truman, who sent him to the European continent in July to investigate the condition of displaced refugees, especially Jews, is too long to publish in the Review but its findings should be known to as many people as possible, and so this column will pick from it those facts which are the most revealing of the fate of a hapless group of humans. Mr. Harrison says that his report is really only a partial one which he was anxious to get to the President, but it tells enough to give a good idea of the present tragedy. He was accompanied on his mission by Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, European director of the American Joint Distribution Committee.

Three months after V-E day, in Germany and Austria, Mr. Harrison found many Jews living under guard behind barbed-wire fences, in camps built by the Germans for slave-laborers and Jews, in crowded, unsanitary and grim conditions, in complete idleness, with no chance to communicate with the outside world except on the sly. The death rate has been high, naturally, and one rabbi, an Army chaplain, attended 23,000 burials, ninety percent Jews, at Bergen Belsen alone. Late in July the Jews were wearing concentration camp clothes or German Elite Guard uniforms. They had no program of activity toward rehabilitation and there is little change in their life from what it was under the Germans except that they are not being exterminated. Their great worry is about their families. Their diet is composed chiefly of bread and coffee, and the buildings they are housed in are unfit for winter use.

There are about one hundred thousand of these displaced Jews and their nationalities are Polish, Hungarian, Rumanian, German and Austrian. Their physical and mental condition is far worse than that of other groups and in order to get the special attention they require they should cease to be regarded as members of nationality groups only. Their first need, then, is to be recognized as Jews, for it was as such that they received more barbaric persecution than the non-Jewish portion of their nationality groups. Their second need is for a place to go to stay and and to live. Palestine is the choice of most and many have relatives there. But others have relatives in other countries and some want to return to Hungary and Rumania or to go to the United States, England, South America, or the British Dominions. Their other needs are those of other people anywhere: clothes, a varied and palatable diet, medicines, beds, and reading materials. They are bitter about their clothes because clothing for the camps is supposed to be requisitioned from the Germans but they have none, whereas the Germans are still the best-dressed population in all of Europe.

Mr. Harrison found that U.N.R.R.A. has not been in a position to help much. It is not sufficiently organized, equipped, or authorized; some workers could not speak English in zones where it was demanded; and the military authorities, because of housing and transportation difficulties, have resisted the entrance of voluntary agencies representatives no matter how qualified they might be to help.

Those who have suffered most and longest should be given first and not last mention, and the Jews in Germany and Austria should have first claim on the conscience of the people of the United States and Great Britain. Those who wish to return to their countries should be aided to do so without delay and with energy and determination. For the others, the issue of Palestine must be faced, on a purely humanitarian basis with no reference to ideological or political considerations as far as Palestine is concerned.

In a very few places where fearless and uncomprising military officers have either requisitioned a village or compelled the Germans to provide housing for displaced Jews these people live less like criminals or herded sheep, but this is being done on too small a scale. At many places Military Government officers either don't want to take such action or they are afraid to inconvenience the German population. Thus, if a group of Jews has to vacate their temporary quarters for military purposes and there are two possible sites, the German burgomeister readily succeeds in persuading the town major to allot the shabby buildings with outside toilet and washing facilities to the Jews and to save the block of flats with conveniences for returning German civilians. It is easier for a German civilian to be employed in Military Government offices than for an equally qualified displaced person. Jews find it hard even to get to speak with military officers because they have to go through German employees; and also insufficient use is being made of their services.

Separate camps should be set up for them wherever they can not be housed in villages or billeted with Germans, and as soon as possible the operation of such camps should be turned over to U.N.R.R.A. There should be a review of military personnel selected for camp commandant positions because some are manifestly unsuited for such a job; and there should be more extensive field visitation by Army Group Headquarters. However, the main solution is the evacuation of all non-repatriable Jews because it is inhuman to ask people to continue to live under present conditions.

The Harrison report to the President was made the latter part of August but was not given out for publication until a month later, along with the sharp and angry letter which Mr. Truman sent to General Eisenhower about it. In that letter President Truman not only showed his concern and personal mortification over the way the displaced Jews were being abominably dealt with, but he also put his finger on this condition as part of a larger picture also clearly seen by Mr. Harrison, a leading Philadelphia lawyer, and now head of the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Mr. Truman said: "We must make clear to the German people that we thoroughly abhor the Nazi policies of hatred and persecution. We have no better opportunity to demonstrate this than by the manner in which we ourselves actually treat the survivors remaining in Germany."

Conditions with regard to the displaced will undoubtedly show some improvement but the fact that it has required presidential intervention and reprimand shows that the attitude of the occupation authorities toward the Germans who are supposed to be held responsible for war and barbarism is lenient and that it even makes the anti-Fascism of these authorities appear lukewarm and farcical. It is bad for the displaced Jews that the occupation forces neglect and ignore them but there is more to this disgraceful picture when the conquerors in the worst war in the world's history seem to be giving the conquered the wink.

The headquarters spokesman said that American officials had been hampered for some time in securing adequate housing for Jews and other displaced persons because so much of Germany had been destroyed and because of the masses of troops who had to be billeted.

A nine-point program demanding the redress of grievances and an open door to Palestine was outlined by leading Jewish relief workers. The program endorsed at a Jewish congress at Belsen recently, made the following demands:

To be regarded as free men, not prisoners, living in exclusively Jewish open camps under Jewish administration and with a Jewish liaison with the Allied authorities.

Better health and housing conditions.

Freedom of expression of opinion on their own problems and the right to communicate with the outside world.

The right to remove to where they themselves wish to go and freedom for those Jews who wish to go to Palestine.

though there were plenty of capable surgeons," he said.

Dr. Leo, whose studious air was in marked contrast to the emotional attitudes of previous witnesses, said bullet wound cases were frequent and he saw "great numbers of people shot dead or shot at" for trying to approach the kitchen or trying to escape through the barbed wire.

There was nothing for treatment of such things as tuberculosis, he said. Finally typhus "spread like wildfire—nearly everyone got it." Disposal of bodies ceased because Nazi forestry officials refused to allow more wood for the pyres to burn them.
